TO TEST THE RAILROAD EIGHT HOUR LAW

Railroads of the Country and the Government Begin Their Legal Battle in Washington.

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, Dec. 4.—The railroads of the country and the government began their contest here today to test the constitutionality of the Adamson eight-hour law. The court was asked to make a quick decision so as to avert any danger to the nation owing to friction resulting between the railroad and their employees.

Solicitor John W. Davis of the Department of Justice presented for the government the decision in the Missouri, Oklahoma and Gulf road in which the Adamson law was declared by Fed. Judge Cook to be unconstitutional. Assisted by the attorneys of the railroads, he asked that the action be advanced as fast as possible for a hearing. The motion as set up by the decision will be applicable to all railroads.

MANY IMPORTANT MEASURES TO BE PASSED AT SESSION

Sixty-Fourth Congress Expected to be an Epoch Making National Legislative Body

(By E. H. Sartwell, International News Service Correspondent.)

Washington, Dec. 4.—Today marked the beginning of the end of the Sixty-fourth congress—an epoch-making national legislative body. With only three months of its life remaining, the congress at noon today opened its final session confronted with domestic and foreign legislative problems of vast moment.

In the legislative program laid down by President Wilson for the "short session" which ends March 4, time will be the essence of the contract. From the first fall of the gavel in the house and senate at noon today the national legislators began a fight against the time and a drive for speed.

With Democratic control of the house in the Sixty-fifth congress a matter of grave doubt, the administration is prepared to make every effort to put through the important measures within the next three months and avoid an extra session next spring.

Despite the declaration of house and senate leaders that the short session will barely have time to do the routine work of providing funds for the

CARRANZA FORCES AGAIN IN CHIHUAHUA

Villa Reported at San Andreas Apparently in No Fear of an Attack.

(Special to The Herald)

El Paso, Dec. 4.—Carranza forces under Gen. Murgeria entered Chihuahua City today from the south and joined the forces of Gen. Ozuna with his 2000 men and Gen. Trevino, who occupied the state capital after Villa had evacuated it. Villa stripped the northern capital of all its artillery, taking along with him eight pieces. The remainder he destroyed, making it certain he can capture Chihuahua City when he desires. The pursuit of Villa will not be commenced until a sufficient number of troops are concentrated. Villa is reported at San Andreas, moving leisurely and apparently in no fear of an attack. His adherents here say he dominates the state.

TRANSPORT SUNK BY GERMAN SUBMARINE

Was On Her Way to Salonika With French Troops.

(Special to The Herald)

Berlin, Dec. 4.—Heavy loss of life is believed here to have occurred when the French transport Karnak was sunk by a German submarine near Malta on November 27. The Admiralty in reporting the fact says the transport was taken to the hospitals in a serious condition. The restaurant was closed pending an investigation.

HIGH COST OF GOVERNMENT A STERN REALITY

Secretary of Treasury Asks for $1,654,819,754 for the Year.

(Special to The Herald)

Washington, Dec. 4.—The high cost of government became a stern reality today when it was shown that it would require four and one half million dollars a day to run the U. S. for the fiscal year beginning July 1, next, according to the estimate submitted to congress by Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury Department. The estimate calls for an appropriation of $1,654,819,754 for the year, an increase of $245,759,763 over last year's estimate and $87,197,454 over the appropriation made by the last session of congress.

MANY PERSONS POISONED IN RESTAURANT

Police and Physicians Use Heroic Measures and Save Several Lives.

(Special to The Herald)

New York, Dec. 4.—More than a score of persons were poisoned early this morning in the Aronde restaurant on Manhattan avenue, Brooklyn. Heroic measures by the police and physicians, who used stomach pumps, saved the lives of a number. Several were taken to the hospitals in a serious condition. The restaurant was closed pending an investigation.

The Billy Sunday special train starts at 10:35 a. m., so bear it in mind.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES FOR THEIR "ABSENT MEMBERS"

Elks Hold Their Annual Memorial on Sunday in Honor of Their Dead—Address Delivered by Rev. Dr. Dussault

In concert with the 2000 or more lodges of Elks throughout the country, the Portsmouth lodge, No. 27, with beautiful but simple ceremonies, paid loving tribute to the memory of their dead in the annual memorial lodge of sorrow held at the Colonial theatre on Sunday afternoon. All over the United States, in nearly every city and town, their simple, impressive ceremonies were being held, and the "absent member" was remembered.

The theatre was filled with the members of the Portsmouth lodge and their friends, who gather once a year to pay tribute to the memory of those who but a short time ago were with them in person. The ceremonies were conducted by Exalted Ruler James W. Barrett and his officers, and included a number of fine selections by the Elks' orchestra, the Acollan quartet, a solo by Mrs. Oliver W. Priest, and the memorial address by the Rev. Dr. William N. Dussault, D. D., of Wakefield, Mass., lodge, No. 1276.

Mr. Dussault spoke for forty minutes and delivered a strong, able address

DEPARTMENT WILL INVESTIGATE LABOR ACTIVITY

Ask Congress to Make Substantial Appropriation for Such Work.

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, Dec. 4.—A general investigation into the Union Labor activity is to be made by the Department of Labor according to their estimate which was submitted to congress today, asking that $10,000 be appropriated to defray the expenses. The department also asks an increase of $25,000 on the appropriation of $75,000 of last year for the expenses of the Federal Conciliation board in labor troubles and points out that the great increase of disagreement make the $25,000 additional necessary.

STELLOW IS SAVED FROM ELECTRIC CHAIR

Breaks Down When Informed His Sentence Had Been
Commuted to Life Imprisonment.

(Special to The Herald)

Ossining, N. Y., Dec. 4.—Three times in the shadow of the electric chair, Charles Stellow was the hapless man in Sing Sing when informed shortly before noon that Governor Whitman had commuted his sentence to life imprisonment. He had been sentenced to die during the week of December 12. The convicted man broke down and cried when informed by a deputy.

Stellow was convicted for the murder of Charles H. Phelps and his housekeeper, but there has always been some doubt as to his guilt owing to a confession made by Erwin King that he killed the couple.

Even though Jack Dillon was terribly mugged up in his last bout with Battling Levensky at the Armory A. A. and even though Levensky beat him in seven out of twelve rounds, yet the "man killer" of Indianapolis will enter the ring a prime favorite Tuesday night at the Grand Opera House, Washington Street, Boston, the new winter home of the Armory A. A. The reason for this is that Jack was noticeably tired as a result of a hard fight in Philadelphia the night before he met Levensky in Boston.

That at least is the hope of the wise ones who put up their real coin to back their opinion. They figure that Levensky won because Dillon lacked the strength and aggressiveness to break through the wonderful defense of Levensky while the latter peppered him with blows from every angle. Even though Levensky won by a good margin, yet it was a while of a fight because with Dillon in the ring there is always that element of a knockout to be considered.

Dillon will not have a chance to enter the ring out of shape next Tuesday night at the Grand Opera House for the articles of agreement stipulate that he shall be in Boston several days in advance and finish up his training in the Hub. With the "man killer" in good shape, it will be a wonderfully fast bout for with the exception of Jess Willard, these two heavies are by far, the best men of their weight in the world.

Dillon has a wonderful punch in either hand. He is not extremely clever, but has an awkward style that makes it difficult for an opponent to solve. This with his rushing, whirlwind method, usually brings him home the victor for there are few fighters who could stand up under the grueling battle that Dillon carries to them. Levensky is one of the few fighters who has an even chance with Dillon, but he is forced to use everything in his repertoire to keep away from the onslaught that Jack carries to him.

PORTSMOUTH JEWS AID FOR HAVEN IN PALESTINE

Degel Zion Pledges Weekly Money to Emergency Fund for the Relief of Jewish War Sufferers

The international movement among the Jews to raise funds for the erection and maintenance of a Home and Haven for Israel in Zion, is meeting with the greatest success. At a meeting held in this city on Sunday afternoon Degel Zion, the Jewish organization in Portsmouth, subscribed the sum of $45.00 in cash and pledged itself to contribute a substantial sum to the emergency fund for the relief of Jewish war sufferers, and to the fund for the erection of the proposed haven in Palestine. The meeting was one of the most enthusiastic that the speakers from Boston have had the pleasure of addressing, and sums of money were offered and pledged made before the speaker had concluded his appeal for assistance in the great work.

The meeting was opened by the president of Degel Zion, Jacob Brown who introduced as the first speaker Louis Shapiro, leader of the Zionist movement in Portsmouth. In the course of his remarks Mr. Shapiro said in part that as they had just celebrated one Thanksgiving day in commemoration of the day set apart for the giving of thanks by the pilgrims in 1621 at Plymouth, Mass., for their bountiful crops, they were to hold another Thanksgiving for their coming to America from nations across the sea where they had been persecuted and ground down. In recognition of their thanks, he said, it was only right that they should be willing and glad to help their less fortunate brothers and sisters who were still in foreign countries where they were meeting with constant oppression and persecution.

He said that the Jews should be proud of this nation and proud of the fact that they are in a position to aid their suffering brothers and sisters who were not here. He said that they should feel it their duty to give freely to aid in this work, to give before they were asked.

Benjamin Rabalsky, a Boston attorney, addressed the meeting and spoke of the fearful conditions which were being encountered by the Jewish peoples in the countries now engaged in the European war. He pictured in detail the sufferings of the Jews in Germany and Russia where they were being discriminated against because of their religion and race. In Germany and Russia where they were being driven from their homes the conditions were tragic, he said. "The national solidarity of the Jewish peoples who are suffering in these countries," he said, "is all that enables them to keep alive and alight their self-respect and the dignity of Israel." He appealed to the Jews of Portsmouth to help in the movement for the salvation of these suffering men, women and children and in thus aiding their brothers and sisters across the seas they were aiding in the redemption of Israel.

This appeal, it was explained to the meeting, was international, and the funds secured were being utilized in assisting the war sufferers and in the building and maintaining of a haven of refuge in the lands still held by the Jews in Palestine. The principal speaker at the meeting was Mr. Alexander Sachs, of Harvard University, now the Assistant Director of the New England Zionist Movement. He gave an interesting address on "If You Were a Jewish Statesman."

He said, "I call upon each of you individually, to think for himself and herself, as a leader receiving news daily of the Jewish distress and of the Jewish problems. In examining all of the facts you must arrive at some constructive policy remedying the situation.

"The suffering of the Jews today is far different than their previous persecution in that part of the world. The suffering now is incidental to the war. Each nation has adopted as its policy a plan of preparedness and defense. In carrying out this plan each individual has had to pitch his life in a key of national service in order to preserve the community.

"So the only sensible thing in the present crisis is to start a movement for preparedness and defense for the Jews in Palestine and to make each individual a member of the fellowship in giving and working for the future of the Jewish race. Zionism is the policy of Jewish preparedness and is being urged to meet the present crisis and to prevent further crises in creating a haven in Palestine for the millions of oppressed and to provide a center for the goal of Israel and the good of the world.

"To join a Zion society is to share in this organizing of the good of Jewish life, to carry forward the idealism for which the whole Jewish past has striven and through which it alone can find fulfillment."

Before the speaker had concluded those in the audience were on their feet offering what sums of money they had with them and asking for an opportunity to make further pledges. The sum of $45.00 was collected and the weekly pledges will probably amount to about $100. The meeting elected Samuel Shapiro and Philip Shapiro as collectors for this fund. The committee which arranged for the meeting, in addition to the president and Mr. Louis Shapiro were Abram Shapiro and David Fleischman.

NO QUININE IN THIS COLD CURE

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends colds and grippe in a few hours.

Take "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until you have taken three doses, then all gripe misery goes and your cold will be broken. It promptly opens your clogged-up nostrils and the air passages of the head; stops nasty discharge or nose running; relieves the headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffling. Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, and causes no inconvenience. Accept no substitute.

FORM CITIZENS' CLUB AT HAMPTON FALLS

Hampton Falls, Dec. 2.—A Citizens' Club has been formed here, the organization being made at a public entertainment given by Representative-elect William E. Walton, in honor of his election as representative. The organization is for the interest of the town and it is to be composed of all political parties. David B. Collins was chosen president and a committee consisting of Mrs. Mabelle McDevitt, Alvin Collins, Walter B. Farmer, David Batchelder, Alvin Prescott, and Mrs. Edwin L. Janvin, was chosen to nominate the other officers.

About 100 representative citizens were present at the meeting and entertainment, and remarks were made by Mr. Walton, who thanked the voters for helping him; David B. Collins, who proposed Mr. Walton's name as a candidate; Charles M. Birtwell, John Stevens, David Batchelder, Alvin Prescott and Walter B. Farmer, the latter proposing the idea of a Citizens' club. An interesting speaker was Hon. Warren Brown, who has served the town in the legislature, and also in the state senate, he being over 50 years of age.

Harold R. Wendell who passed the Thanksgiving recess with his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Wendell of Pleasant Street, returned on Sunday evening to Hannover to resume his studies at Dartmouth college.

GRACE DARLING'S DARING EXPLOIT

How Light Keeper's Daughter Won Immortal Fame Saving Wrecked Ones.

Grace Darling, whose name, by an act of heroic daring, has resounded through the civilized world, was born in 1816 at Bamborough, England. She was the seventh child. Her father held the responsible post of keeper of the Longstone lighthouse, situated on one of the Farne Islands, a rocky group extending some seven or eight miles beyond this dangerous coast.

These islands are about 25 in number and are as desolate as the tomb. The sea rushes with tremendous force through the channels made by these unprotected bits of land.

In 1826 when Grace was eleven years old, her father took his family to Longstone, another island of the group. There is not a blade of grass nor a spadeful of earth on this isolated spot in mid-seas—for it is an island of rock.

In this dreary place where years sometimes elapsed without communication from the mainland, the greatest part of Grace's life was passed with no other companionship than that of her parents and brother. But the girl never complained of being lonely.

After her school days were over she preferred to remain in the lighthouse rather than go forth into the great world to marry, as her brothers and sisters had, except one. She loved the "beautiful isolation," as the lighthouse called it, and was more than content to remain at home and help her mother with the household affairs.

In September, 1838, when Grace was 22 years old, a vessel called the Forfarshire loaded with a valuable cargo sailed from Hull, England for the port of Dundee, Scotland. There were 63 souls on board. The ship was overhauled before sailing and everything aboard her declared in order.

The second day out word passed from mouth to mouth that the bellers were leaking and it was all the dromen could do to keep the fires going. A terrible northwest wind buffeted them about in every direction. The engines were useless. Fearful of drifting ashore every sail was set. The rain fell in torrents and the rain was so thick that it became impossible for the captain to give the position of the ship with any degree of certainty.

Finally some one saw the Farne Light. That meant certain death for how could the crew work as they might, save the ship from being dashed to the pieces on the rocks?

The passengers huddled together trying to comfort each other. But they knew in their hearts that the end was near. Nothing short of a miracle could save them.

Through a rift in the fog a great rock appeared, a moment more and the ship was broken in two, the afterpart with most of the persons upon it, being swept away, while the forepart was splintered to pieces upon the rocks. The first to go down were the captain and his wife.

Grace and her father were almost panic-stricken and the keeper of the lighthouse decided it was useless to attempt a rescue, but his brave daughter thought differently.

At her heartrending plea a boat was lowered. She knew how to handle an oar. She determined to save them and no remonstrances of her father could keep her from her purpose. She declared if her father did not accompany her she would go alone, and that live or die, she would at least attempt to save the helpless sufferers. There was no one at this time at the lighthouse but her parents and herself, her brother being on the mainland.

Reluctantly her father consented the trial and the mother helped get the boat ready. Then father and daughter, each taking an oar, started out to sea. They both were possessed for super-human strength, for nothing short of this could have carried the maddened angry sea to the rock. The agonized cries of the passengers redoubled their efforts and in the incredibly short time considered the heroic effort they had to put forth to ride over the raging sea, the high of the vessel was reached in safety and the survivors were transferred to the sturdy little boat that never would have been there if it had not been for the heroine of Grace Darling.

The return journey called for even more heroism, although she had the help of the sailors at the oars. The tide was against them. Every man's heart sank within him. It seemed impossible to be saved in such a swelling sea.

Grace Darling never lost heart. She guided that little boat better than any veteran although she had never assisted at a rescue before. No prayers were heard, no hymns were sung. The little woman who had determined to be the savior of the souls she felt were committed to her care, now worked like a Trojan. The only prayer was offered by the daughter of the lighthouse keeper, when she asked God to renew her strength.

At last Longstone was reached and Grace's mother housed the sufferers at the "Light," as the lighthouse is often called.

In safety at last, but how about reaching the mainland, seven miles away? It was unthinkable to entertain such a proposition at that moment. There were ample accommodations at the light because plenty of homely fare.

Within a few days the surviving passengers of the ill-fated Forfarshire were safely landed on the coast of England. Of the 63 who set sail from the port of Hull, six days before, but nine were alive.

The news of her heroic act soon became the news of the civilized world, although in those days there was no cable, no telegraph, no wireless to flash out the glorious deed inside of 40 seconds, as science enables man to do now. But the news girdled the earth just the same and Grace Darling became a heroine of the world, not for an hour but for all time.

England, naturally was the first of the countries to do honor to her fair daughter. Through public subscription 1000 pounds were settled on her and many magnificent gifts were showered upon her to say nothing of smaller ones that were sent her by the hundred. Among them was a silver medal bearing this inscription: "Presented by the Glasgow Humane Society to Miss Grace Darling, in admiration of her dauntless and heroic conduct on saving (along with her father) the lives of nine persons from the wreck of the Forfarshire steamer, 7th September, 1838."

She still loved the isolated life on that lonely island. She read the testimonials that came to her with pleasure but she preferred to remain with the beacon light that shed its hopeful rays to those far out at sea.

Grace Darling's health was never robust and a few months after the wreck she showed signs of consumption. She was taken back to her birthplace, Bamborough. The doctor could not promise her recovery. She was told this as gently as possible. Grace was game to the end and she faced the inevitable like the true heroine she was.

Two monuments have been erected to her memory, one in the quaint chapel of St. Cuthbert, one of the Farne Islands; the other one in the Bamborough churchyard. This last is particularly beautiful; her figure cut in full length, hewn out of a huge block of marble. Philadelphia Press.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLES

TAKE SALTS AT FIRST SIGN OF BLADDER IRRITATION OR BACKACHE

The American race and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness, and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night, if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

WITHDRAWS PETITION FOR NEW HAMPSHIRE RECOUNT.

Republican State Chairman Takes Action but Gives No Reason for It.

Concord, N. H., Dec. 3.—A petition that had been filed at the office of the secretary of state for the recount of the vote for presidential electors was withdrawn by Philip H. Bulkley, chairman of the Republican state committee today. The recount was to have been begun on Dec. 4. The reason for withdrawing the petition was not stated.

The official returns gave President Wilson a plurality of 36, the figures being Wilson 43,779, Hughes 43,743.

SUFFRAGE LEADER TO SPEAK HERE THIS EVENING

DR. EFFIE MCCOLLUM JONES TO ADDRESS PORTSMOUTH AUDIENCE AT THE WOMAN'S BUILDING TONIGHT.

Under the auspices of the local equal suffrage league Dr. Effie McCollum Jones, the noted suffrage leader, will speak this evening at 8.00 o'clock in the Women's Building. The committee in charge of the meeting has extended an invitation to all who are interested in the movement to attend this meeting, as well as to those who have not yet decided that equal suffrage is simply justice and is necessary to a true democracy.

Dr. Effie McCollum Jones is a leader in the great woman movement of today. Dr. Jones has always been an ardent suffragist, but not until the last two years, when the call for leaders was sounded so loudly did she devote her entire time to the suffrage cause. Having been elected dean of women of Lombard college, Galesburg, Ill., Dr. Jones was ready to take up her new duties when she was prevailed upon to take the platform in the interests of suffrage. As an orator Dr. Jones is at once eloquent and forceful. She is a keen thinker and carries her discourse to a logical conclusion.

Dr. Jones has filled many positions of honor and trust. Among them, the very responsible position of trustee for about 12 years of Lombard college, which institution conferred upon her the honorary degree of D. D., Dr. Jones being one of less than half a dozen women in the country to be so honored. Vice President of the Associated Charities of Waterloo, Iowa, vice president of the W. C. T. U. of Waterloo, and Barre, Vt., and vice president of the Iowa State Suffrage association are some of the positions filled by Dr. Jones. She is a member of the I. E. O., the King's Daughters, having been prominent in their international convention at Burlington, Iowa, and was twice elected president of the Twin-City Ministerial association.

Dr. Jones has been on the lecture platform for some time, having lectured many times on the Passion Play and on other subjects at Chautauqua and similar large gatherings.

Those who know Dr. Jones intimately think of her not as a lecturer or as a magnetic leader in a big cause, but as a home woman, the mother of two beautiful daughters, and a charming hostess over a home where many distinguished persons have been entertained.

Born on a farm and having received her very early education in the district school, Dr. Jones is thoroughly conversant with the problems that confront the farm man and woman and the residents of the small communities.

It was while a student at Lombard college that Dr. Jones met, as a classmate, R. Wallace Jones, who she married as soon as they were graduated. At his death, some 18 years ago, Dr. Jones assumed the responsibility of keeping the home and raising their two very interesting daughters. She is loved and admired for her sterling qualities by all who know her.

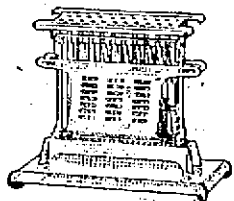

The friends of H. A. Giles of New Broad street will be pleased to learn that he is convalescing from a week's illness.

JONES sometimes wakes up feeling cross and in consequence the family know it without his telling them in so many words.

Mrs. Jones attributes it to biliousness and if it doesn't wear off during the day she gives him a dose of liver medicine at night. The next morning he feels better and she gives him coffee for breakfast,—and the next morning,—and the next morning. And in a few days Jones has another spell.

Dear Mrs. Jones means all right, but she doesn't seem to realize that if she didn't give Jones his morning coffee she wouldn't have to give him the liver medicine and Jones would feel all right without both.

Housewives everywhere have found out that Instant Postum takes the place of breakfast coffee perfectly. And that is only one of the reasons why Instant Postum has wholly supplanted the use of coffee on thousands upon thousands of American breakfast tables.

Editorial.....28 | Business.....37

Portsmouth, N. H., Monday, December 4, 1916.

The Newspaper First.

With the holiday trading season again at hand and the advice to do Christmas shopping early ringing in the people's ears, the subject of advertising is of special interest to traders, men and the public, and will continue to be for some weeks to come. The subject is of interest and importance at all seasons, but there is no time of the year when the store windows and the advertising columns of the newspapers are watched more eagerly than during the holiday season, when trade is stimulated to exceptional proportions by the spirit of good will to men, and especially to children.

This season and condition make timely a consideration of the subject of advertising. Every business man is obliged to advertise, and it is for his interest to know how best to fix the attention of the public on what he has to offer.

A member of the editorial staff of a prominent trade paper delivered an address recently before a publicity club, in which he took the position that window display is one of the most effective means of attracting the attention of the public. He pointed out the possibilities in connection with the proper trimming of store windows and said this would create more business than any other single form of advertising.

But with this view it will be impossible for all to agree. The value of proper window decoration none will dispute, but time and experience have proved that newspaper advertising is the best in the world. It is well that the merchant should make his windows attractive, but the one who should depend upon that means alone for calling trade to his place of business would soon go to the wall.

The newspaper advertisement is a constant worker and altogether the most effective known to the business world. The show window compels attention while one stands in front of it, and it has its uses. No one would cry it down. But the beholder soon passes on to others just as attractive and becomes more or less confused in the maze of display. At his fireside he reads with deliberation of the offerings and terms of the merchants, decides on what he wants and where to get it, and the work of the advertisement is done.

As this paper has many times said, and as is known by business men everywhere, all advertising is good, but when it comes to naming the best it will not be found in the store window, worthy as that is of the most careful attention. As a means of reaching the buying public the newspaper has no equal, and there is nothing to indicate that it ever will have.

Unexpected explosions are startling at any place and time, and it is not strange that there should have been some excitement on the estate of John D. Rockefeller at Tarrytown, N. Y., the other night, when the premises were shaken by a terrific blast. The cause was the explosion of a boiler in a greenhouse, and all, from John D. down to the humblest laborer, breathed easier when the truth was made known.

Still comes the call from the uneasy for a 2½ cent coin. One claim is that this would end the charging of 15 cents for an article which sells two for a quarter. But could not such articles be sold now for 13 cents? Americans are not in the habit of splitting cents, and the call for a fractional coin is more of a fad than a necessity.

A report comes from Chicago that the disease which recently appeared among western cattle is not the foot and mouth disease, as was at first feared. But the fact that any cattle disease has come to the surface is most unwelcome at a time when the prices of meats are high as they are now.

Michigan made a bad record during its hunting season this year, twenty-five persons being killed. All the game secured will not pay for those lives, but sport is sport, and it sometimes seems as if in this country no sport amounts to much that doesn't result in some fatalities.

A man who has been looking into the shoe trade finds that the average wholesale price of shoes for ordinary wear is about $2.44 a pair. If these figures are correct it is apparent that cold storage products are not the only ones that are subject to "regulation" in these trying times.

It looks as if China might be Americanized before America becomes "Chinified," a terror to which at least one eminent orator has been pointing. The Orientals have no objection to Americans going into their country and expending one hundred million dollars in railroad building.

The shortage of office boys in New York city is making openings for elderly men who are willing to work, but are no longer able to keep the up-to-date step. How true the saying, "Once a man, twice a child."

CONFERENCE OF OLDER BOYS ENDS

Nashua Excellent Host at Annual Meeting of Association.

Nashua, Dec. 4.—The tenth annual conference of the Older Boys' association closed last evening at the First Congregational church with a mass meeting in which all the Protestant churches participated. In the morning many of the churches had the pulpits occupied by speakers from the conference and the work and benefit of the state organization were fully set forth. The delegates, about 350 in number, attended the services with the families entertaining them.

Last evening there was a mass meeting for the delegates and the older boys of the city at the First Congregational church. The devotional service was in charge of H. H. Perley A. Foster, state secretary of county work was in charge of the closing meeting last evening. There were reports from the different conference committees which were accepted and acted upon and the devotional service was in charge of the Secretary Benjamin Moorley of the Nashua Y. M. C. A.

The closing address was given by Daniel I. Polling, Boston associate president of the U. S. Society of Christian Endeavor. It was on "The Grip That Holds."

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Too Many Men Still Believe in Perpetual Motion.
(By Bruce Barton, Editor of Sunday Post Magazine.)

Some day, go into the Patent Office in Washington and look at the applications that have been made for patents on perpetual-motion machines.

You will see some very ingenious devices.

For instance, a machine to be run by the power of gravity—iron balls dropping down a chute and turning a wheel.

The inventor of that machine provided for everything. He even added a brake to stop the machine. In case it should run so fast as to become unmanageable.

He forgot only one thing—that it requires just as much energy to lift the balls up against gravity as they develop by falling down.

In England, between 1817 and 1803, more than six hundred separate applications for patents were made on perpetual-motion machines.

Every single year new applications are made.

They stand—this unending procession of applications—they stand as a magnificent monument to the unending eagerness of human nature.

A testimony to man's unquenchable belief that somehow, somewhere, it is possible in this world to get something for nothing.

It is a mistake to gather all these perpetual-motion machines together in Washington, D. C.

One of them should be set up at the busiest corner of every American city. And twelve should be distributed along Wall Street, New York.

Every man who goes downtown to business in the morning should pass a perpetual-motion machine and be reminded of its lesson.

There is one great law that runs through all life. Many men have discovered it: Emerson named it the Law of Compensation.

Everywhere that law is operative. In physics, action and reaction are equal. In electricity, if the north end of a magnet attracts, the south end repels.

If, as Emerson points out, a government is bad, the governor's life becomes unsafe. If taxes are too high, they yield no revenue; if laws are too severe, juries will not convict; if they are too lenient, private vengeance steps in and metes out justice.

Compensation—everywhere.

When I started in business I used to be somewhat worried by the good fortune of the wicked.

I saw fellows who worked one half as hard as I and got twice as much money.

I saw other fellows lift themselves into the good graces of the boss on the golden wings of gold and funny stories.

But I have seen the Law of Compensation get in too much deadly work over to concern myself any more about anybody else's success.

I have seen good fellows who thought they were perfectly secure because they called the boss by his first

CURRENT OPINION

In Discussion of Peace Terms Spirit of Hatred Must Be Repressed.

When the terms of the peace treaty come up for discussion the people will insist on expressing an opinion. In order to express an opinion they must form an opinion, and the churches must do their part in helping form it. With regard to the making of peace Englishmen must repress the spirit of hatred. Is it wise to talk of burning a whole people for all time to come? The German people themselves must learn the truth about the war. To indulge in revenge would be to sow the seeds of future wars. Nations could not hate one another forever. Serious terms might have to be imposed on the foe, but they ought not to be imposed in any spirit of hatred.

It has been suggested that after peace has been concluded a new war of trade is to follow the war of arms. The proposal has immense capacities for mischief. Such a trade war would prolong and embitter afresh those hatreds that ought to be allowed to die.—By Viscount Bryce, English Statesman.

name, be fired by the same boss, who called them by their first names when he did it.

And I have seen men grow very rich—and I know that there are many ways in which the Law of Compensation can work when a man has the ambition to become very rich.

It can make him pay with his health. It can turn his home into a counting-room. It can make his children snobs and hypocrites. It can destroy his joy in simple things.

Another gentleman discovered the Law of Compensation even before Emerson. He stated it in this form:

Do not deceive; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.

There are many seeming exceptions to this law; but the longer I live the more sure I am that if most of the exceptions were analyzed they would be found not to be exceptions at all.

There is no such thing as perpetual motion. No man ever for very long gets more than he deserves, without paying for it something equally as valuable as he gets.

"Nothing can work me damage except myself," said St. Bernard. "The harm that I sustain I carry about in me, and never am a real sufferer except by my own fault."

"And," he might have added—"never a real gainer for very long, except by my own hard work."

next fiscal year the congress is confronted with demands for action along many general legislative lines.

Legislation must be passed, it is left to meet the recurring crisis in the railroad labor situation. It has become apparent that the eight-hour law passed in the closing hours of the last session merely postponed the struggle between the railroads and their operating employees.

Investigations by various commissions and committees are already under way seeking a solution of the railroad problem, but with the constitutionality of the eight-hour law under attack in the courts, and the brotherhoods threatening a general strike unless the eight-hour day becomes effective January 1, congress will be forced to act at once, without awaiting the result of investigations.

President Wilson is determined to prevent the disastrous consequences of a general railroad tie-up, and he will go to almost any lengths to prevent an open break. Just what legislation will be proposed to meet this strike situation is not clear, but the pressure is already tremendous in Washington for a general law enforcing an investigation of labor disputes before a strike can legally be called.

Organized labor generally opposes this plan and will exert all its powerful influence in congress to defeat any such proposals. The whole labor situation throughout the country is charged with explosive possibilities, which ill-considered or unwise legislation might touch off.

The gravity of the conditions has impressed administration leaders both in and out of congress and they realize the need of real statesmanship if industrial disaster of widespread proportions is to be avoided.

The ambitious administration plans for extending American foreign trade and equipping American export commerce for the world trade war that will follow settlement of the European conflict call for extensive legislation. The start of this program has already been made. The house at the last session passed the Webb bill exempting from the operations of the anti-trust laws, combinations of the American merchant and manufacturer are formed for the sole purpose of engaging in the foreign trade. This measure failed to pass the senate, but will be taken up in the upper house at once. Despite strenuous opposition the bill is expected to become a law.

The administration, through the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and the Federal Trade Commission, plans a general foreign trade legislative programme supplemental to the Webb law, which will demand lengthy consideration.

A complete code of neutrality laws worked out in detail for the administration by the Department of Justice is awaiting action in both house and senate. The code, in the form of a dozen individual bills, was introduced in both houses at the last session. It gives the President unprecedented powers and almost unlimited authority to deal with violations of neutrality. It would allow him arbitrarily to refuse clearance to vessels suspected of neutrality violations and would authorize the use of the armed forces of the country to preserve neutrality.

The measures would likewise provide a strict code for the control of belligerent agents in the United States in time of war by their native land, and would regulate the conduct of interned aliens.

President Wilson's demand for conservation legislation, presented to the congress a year ago has not yet been satisfied, and work on the conservation program must be continued. The elaborate revision of the General Dam act, the liberalizing under which the water power may be developed on navigable rivers and other waterways under federal jurisdiction, is in dispute between the two houses.

Differences in the measures as proposed by the senate and house resulted in sending the bill to a conference committee, where for several months it has been under discussion in a futile effort to find a basis for agreement between the houses. An effort will be made to hasten final action on the measure.

Measures affecting the development of water power on public lands, home stead lands, the development of coal oil on mineral lands and other minor conservation measures, most of which have been passed by the house are awaiting action in the senate.

President Wilson and his advisors are also insistent that congress take some action restricting the use of money in national elections and in this connection plans have been laid for going into the various charges and counter charges relating to the campaign funds in the November election. An elaborate bill, closely restricting the use of funds and providing complete publicity of contributions and expenditures by all committees and individuals connected with elections for President, vice-President, senators and representatives was passed by the house during the last session. The measure has the endorsement of the President and an effort will be made to put it through the senate, where vigorous opposition has developed among proponents of various milder restrictions.

Charges as to the use of money in the November campaign have been made more or less openly ever since Election day. They have been particularly directed against Republican candidates for the U. S. senate in the Middle West, and the suggestion has been made that a congressional committee ought to conduct a general campaign contributions inquiry.

It is possible that the proceedings seeking to unseat one or more successful candidates for the senate or the house may be undertaken; but action along this line would have to await the organization of the new congress.

The general subject of the high cost of living will undoubtedly come before congress in various forms, but the lack of time for general legislation may prevent action during the short session. Numerous proposals for an embargo against the exportation of wheat, flour and other breadstuffs have been made, but congress probably will take no action until investigations undertaken by various executive departments into the causes of the enormous rise in the prices of the necessities of life have been completed.

This hosts of woman suffrage advocates returned to their attack on congress today and announced their intention of continuing their fight for an amendment to the national constitution granting nation-wide suffrage to women. But the brief time before congress and the vast amount of routine work to be undertaken promised little in the way of actual results before March 4.

SUBMARINE SIGHTED OFF BLOCK ISLAND

Claimed That Gigantic Craft Was Not an American Boat.

(Special to The Herald)
Boston, Dec. 4.—Custom officials in Boston were notified today that a gigantic submarine, with two periscopes had been sighted scouting off Block Island. The sailors who saw it claim that it was not an American craft.

SOMEWHERE IN IRELAND

The Kaiser's cows are grazing where the Shamrock used to grow. How long they'll pasture on the green there, no one seems to know. But if we judge the future by what's happened, don't you know, they'll be no grass for Pat's Jackass where the Shamrock used to grow.

Oh Johnny Bull, Oh Johnny Bull, what are you going to do? You said that you would whip the Dutch and now it's up to you. But unless you got a bull on, there's one thing you should know, they'll be raising plants for Sour-krout where the Shamrock used to grow.

PORTSMOUTH YACHT CLUB NOTES

All the motor craft have been hauled up and housed for the winter.

A new glee club has been organized for the star work at all future entertainments.

A large party gathered at the festive board on Sunday night for the regular supper but more were waiting for that coon feast on Sunday evening next.

The club members admit that they have been treated to many a good fish story but the blue ribbon now goes to two members who have recently returned from a hunting trip.

U-BOATS LURK IN VICINITY OF WEST INDIES

Ambassador Bernstorff Is Warned That Sinking of Ships Will Mean Rupture.

Providence, Dec. 4.—The Journal today says: The wireless warning recently issued to captains of merchant vessels in the Western Atlantic were put out by the order of the British Admiralty, with the full knowledge that there are now in the neighborhood of West Indian waters two large German submarines which have been here since the visit of the U-53, and also because of the knowledge of the British Admiralty that two other German submarines of the newest and speediest type, left Kiel for the coast of the United States on November 5 and were able to avoid every effort that was made to capture or sink them before they got back to the North Sea.

The U. S. government has been fully informed of this situation, and President Wilson has made strenuous representations to Ambassador von Bernstorff concerning it.

The Journal is able to state authoritatively that the plan of dispatching four of the new German submarines from Kiel on November 5 was known in advance to the British authorities, that all four submarines left Kiel on that date and at different hours, and that two of them were sunk during the same day by British destroyers, the other two getting safely away.

Advices received by the British Admiralty within the last week, it is now understood, make it certain that one of these submarines was sighted about 60 miles off the coast of Bermuda heading northward, on the morning of November 17; and that a small British cruiser sighted another German submarine Nov. 25, about 25 miles from Port Antonio, Jamaica, but could not get within firing distance of her until she had submerged.

At the time of the departure of the U-53 from Newport, the Providence Journal declared that two other submarines, the U-45 and the U-61, accompanied her to American waters and did not intend to return to German ports with her. The German ambassador has been kept fully informed from day to day as to whereabouts of these two submarines which have never left the waters of the West Indies since they reached there two days after the departure of the U-53 from this country. Last Wednesday the German embassy received from Santiago, Cuba, a complete report concerning the whereabouts at that time of these two submarines.

It has been impossible to ascertain the nature of the correspondence that has been going on during the past week between the White House and the German embassy; but officials of the embassy have made up secret, in their private conversation of the fact that the sinking of merchant vessels in or in the neighborhood of territorial waters of the U. S. will no longer be tolerated, an that any repetition of the exploit of the U-53 will mean a rupture of relations with Germany.

Subsequent to the presentation of this stand, the German ambassador has been in almost hourly communication with his government through Sayville, and acting through two commercial houses in Baltimore has also been in correspondence with individuals on the Cuban coast, who have undoubtedly in some way transmitted his message direct to the commanders of the two submarines which have been in that neighborhood for several weeks.

During the exclusive performance for women at the Olympia Theatre on Tuesday afternoon the management has arranged to substitute women attendants in the place of the regular corps of employees. This is done with the idea of saving the employees from shock, but entirely for the purpose of allowing the lecturer perfect freedom of speech in her explanation of "Twilight Sleep" pictures. It has been found also that a certain amount of embarrassment exists in the audience where the picture has been shown where the usual attaches have been employed. In reality there is no cause for it, as the subject is one which concerns the women of the entire universe and to want for knowledge of such deep concern is a sign only of intellectual progress among women.

A LUCKY MAN

Charles Hutchins of 202 Rumford street, Concord, has a pen of ten hens that he can well be proud of. During the month of November when the eggs were averaging about 50 cents a dozen he was fortunate enough to secure 201 eggs from his nests. The birds are of the Rhode Island Red species, four of which were hatched April 15 of this year and the other six the 15th of May.

J. A. BORTHWICK ENDORSED
BY REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE*Name to be Presented to Party at Caucus this Afternoon for Chief Executive of the City

At the meeting of the Republican City Committee on Saturday evening Councilman James A. Borthwick was endorsed for the Republican nomination for mayor of Portsmouth and his name will go before the members of the party today as a candidate for the nomination against John A. Tobey, the only other member of the party seeking the office. The Republican City Committee believe that they have in Mr. Borthwick a man who is strong enough to lead the party in the coming municipal election and his public record is all that could be desired.

Mr. Borthwick has been actively engaged in the management of municipal affairs for a long period of years and has been a member of the city council, as councilman-at-large, for several terms. For the past four years he has been in the council, and at a previous time served another four years as a member of the city's legislative body.

In his work in the council he has been a member of the finance committee for several terms and the Republican City Committee believes that they could not have found a man more familiar with the finances of the city than Mr. Borthwick.

Theodore W. Law, for three years, and Councilman Clarence Smart, for two years, received the committee's endorsement as candidates for the Board of Public Works. The committee endorsed the candidacy of Eben H. Hildesell for assessor.

Four candidates for the four offices of Councilman-at-large were also endorsed and Councilman E. Curtis Matthews, Jr., Charles A. Allen, James W. Schurman, and Richard S. Weston.

By a joint agreement with the Democratic City Committee the four retiring members of the board of instruction were endorsed. Both parties are agreed to the plan of keeping the schools out of politics and the candidates for the board will be non-partisan. Those endorsed are Hon. Calvin Page, Charles W. Hodgdon, George W. McCarthy and Mrs. Mary L. Wood.

NAVY YARD NOTES

Over 3,000 on Boston Yard

Although there are 3,050 men employed at the Charlestown navy yard, the largest number since the Spanish war, this is not sufficient to turn out the work on the warships that are awaiting repairs.

The yard easily could give employment to at least 300 more men, but skilled workmen are most desired and are hard to get because of the rush of business at private yards and outside shops.

The repairs on the supply ship Vestal and the Birmingham, flagship of the torpedo flotilla, have been completed and both sailed from the yard Saturday. The Birmingham went to Philadelphia to return with men to complete the crew of the Tacoma. The Vestal went to New York for a load of beef to be distributed among the ships of the fleet.

Want $500,000 Here

It is understood that the Industrial Department of the local yard will make a fight for $500,000 of the big appropriation for navy yards. This amount is needed for a new machine shop extension for foundry tools and equipment for machine and electrical shops, new building ways, etc.

Work for Boys

More boys can find steady employment in the Industrial Department.

Looking for Draftsmen

A competitive examination has been announced for ship draftsmen to fill vacancies at the bureau of Construction and Repair at Washington and at the several navy yards of the government. The register of eligibles will be divided into four grades each grade covering compensation as follows:

Grade 1—$3.25 to $4 per diem.
Grade 2—Over $4 to $5.04 per diem.
Grade 3—Over $5.04 to $6 per diem.
Grade 4—Over $6 per diem.

Meet Wednesday night

The Navy Yard Improvement Association will hold a meeting at U. V. U. hall on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

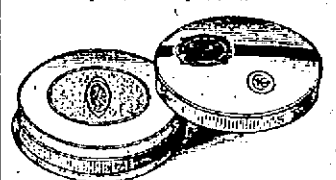

OBITUARY

Mrs. Ellen Donovan

Mrs. Ellen Donovan, widow of Patrick Donovan, died today at her home on McDonough street, aged 75 years. Deceased was one of the best known Irish residents of Portsmouth where she has resided for nearly a half century. Mrs. Donovan was a constant attendant at the Church of the Immaculate Conception and her life was marked with many domestic virtues, friendship and good deeds. Besides her son, James P. Donovan, who is survived by one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Leary of this city; three brothers, Timothy and John of Amherst, N. Y., and Michael of Troy, N. Y. Her funeral will take place from the Church of the Immaculate Conception on Wednesday morning at 8.30.

SAYS MORMONS
SWEAR HOLY WAR
AGAINST U. S.*Former Priest and Missionary of Utah Sect Addresses
National Reform Asso.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 4.—How Mormon priests are forced to swear a "holy war" against the United States was described before the National Reform Association which convened here today, by Vernon J. Danielson, a lawyer of Independence, Mo., and a former priest and missionary of the Utah sect. He said:

"Mormonism is made up of all the blasphemies the world has ever known. A woman has no soul, only as she is saved by her Mormon God husband by a celestial marriage, by which she will not only be a wife here, but hereafter.

"Mormonism is treason to this government. The Mormon prophet claims that it is his right to rule all the world. I say, of my own experience, that the Mormon prophet and priests administer an oath of bloody vengeance against the people of the United States and of treason to this Government to every trusted follower of the church in the secret temple rites in Salt Lake City.

"I had administered to me, in the midst of those horrible ceremonies, at a time when I was half maddened by mingled emotions; in the mystic darkness of that dreadful place; clothed in the robes of a priest, utterly unable to make a movement to escape, or to think clearly enough to know whether or not I wanted to escape.

"This is the oath as the priest gave it to me, and as I took it with uplifted hand, vowing to the Mormon God that I would keep it at the cost of my life:

"We, as a people, have a holy war against this nation. Therefore, we do covenant and promise, each and every one of us, that we will avenge the blood of the prophets against this nation; and that we will teach the same unto our children unto the third and fourth generation; and that we will pray, and never cease to pray Almighty God that he will guide the hand of the prophet against this nation."

"Every person in that dimly lighted room, at the command of the priest who uttered the oath to us, raised his or her white-robed arm in solemn vow of vengeance."

Mrs. George W. Coleman, of Boston, Mass., said:

"The Mormon missionaries seek primarily for women and young women as converts. A few years ago the Mormon Church in Boston received seventy-seven new members in one year. All but two were young women.

"In the winter and spring of 1912 a small group of men and women were able to follow up the work of the Mormon elders in many parts of Greater Boston. They were found in practically every meeting where Mormonism was discussed. In an interdenominational meeting of church women eleven Mormons were present, according to the statement of one of their number.

"Mormon elders were found in at least two Sunday Schools of different denominations; a Mormon in a church quartet; a Mormon in a private school as a teacher of music; a Mormon in another school, ostensibly for the purpose of study, but really, according to her own statement, with the purpose of proselyting; a Mormon seeking high school girls on skating parks."

THE GREAT LODI TROUPE AT THE COLONIAL TODAY.

A vaudeville novelty so great that it has attracted the attention of every prominent theatrical manager in the United States is the Lodi Troupe, which opens a three days engagement today at the Colonial Theatre, this city. They offer a spectacular scenic novelty entitled: "Fun in the Alps," and it will require but one performance for them to become the talk of the town.

An exceedingly clever bill surrounds them, including: Jos. Belmont and Co. who present "A Springtime Novelty." Mr. Belmont is known to every phonograph lover, for his whistling selections are famous the world over. "Bits from the Movies" presented by Berwick & Harle, shows "Patsy" and "Mabel" the well known characters. Mario & Hunter, in "The Crazy Revue," Carl Francis, in a melange of songs, dances and chatter, "The Yellow Menace," Hearst News and others form the program for the first half of this week.

On Friday and Saturday of this week, Charlie Chaplin in his latest and best two reel comedy "The Count" will be shown.

NAVAL PRISON SCORED BY THOMAS M. OSBORNE

NAVAL PRISON CONDEMNED BY OSBORN.

Former Warden of Sing Sing Will Send Severe Report to Secretary Daniels After His Investigation Here

That Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden of Sing Sing prison, and lately sent to this city by Secretary of the Navy Daniels, to investigate conditions at the Naval Prison at the Portsmouth navy yard, thinks very poorly of the institution, will be shown in his official report to the head of the navy department. This was made plain in his talk before the members of the Twentieth Century Club of Boston on Saturday evening, Mr. Osborne said that the prison was poorly managed, that it was too severe in its treatment of its prisoners, and that the prison uniforms were "degrading."

"As my official report has not yet gone in I ought not to say much," he replied when asked to give his impressions. "I will admit, however, that the prison seemed to me absurdly managed. What is it for? To fit men to return to the navy? Or to go out in the world? In either case it is a failure."

Treatment Most Severe
"Though it shelters youths who have committed no crime, in the eyes of the civil authorities, for sailors convicted of felonies go to the Concord Reformatory or to Weathersfield, etc., the treatment is the most severe anywhere. The uniforms are degrading. The harbor, the bootblack, etc., are engaged in a ridiculous fashion. When the men return from working on the seawall, in a place where they could not possibly have obtained anything but sand, boulders and seaweed, they are stripped and searched.

"What incredible imbecility wardens are capable of! Portsmouth reminded me of Portland, Me., where men are searched in that absurd fashion 20 times a day, and of the jail at Trenton where the 10 shower baths are locked up from Sept. 15 until July, because the doctor thinks that if the men took a bath except during 2 1/2 months in the year they might catch cold."

Would Help Massachusetts
"Not wanted in New York, I am now unemployed and ready to help Massachusetts, if you want more effective prisons. My only instance would be that the prisoners should take the government in their own hands and work out their own salvation, not submit to the standards of the authorities in regard to good conduct or undergo the reforms that experts try to impose from above."

"Punishment has no deterrent effect. We are missing the greatest opportunity of our lives if we fail to educate the 476,000 people leaving institutions of correction yearly, for they are the best possible missionaries to the underworld, inaccessible otherwise and a constant menace."

Col. Cyrus B. Adams traced the progress from vengeance, repression and reformation to prevention and said it would be a blessing to the state if Providence would consume the old Sherborn Reformatory without injuring the inmates.

Several delegations of independent manufacturers of telephone equipment have notified the public service commission that they will be present at the hearing on December 13 when the dealings of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company with the Western Electric Company, so far as they have a bearing on rates is concerned, are to be aired. Among those who have signified their intention of being present, either through counsel or their officials are the Kellogg Switchboard & Supply Manufacturing Co., the Swedish-American Telephone Manufacturing Co., the American Electric Co., the Hawthorne Electric Co., and the Telephone Publishing Co., all of Chicago. The claim of the commission regarding the dealings of the two companies, is that they may have a bearing on rates or service.

Here are some of the highlights of Rev. Billy Sunday's sermon on "Mothers": If a man had half as much grit as women there would be different stories written about a good many homes. If you want to find greatness don't go towards the throne, go to the cradle and the nearer you get to the cradle, the nearer to greatness. Most any old stick will do for a cradle; God is particular about the mother; If Washington's mother had been like a Happy Holloman's mother, Washington would have been a Happy Holloman. If the mothers would live as they should, we preachers would have little to do. Being a King, an Emperor or a President is mighty small business compared to being a mother or the teacher of children. The devil gets in many a boy by getting in his daddy first. When a woman's heart and a baby's tears get tangled up together something happens that gives the devil cold feet.

100 FOND OF GAY LIVING FOR BRIDE

Former Portsmouth Resident Drops Into Matrimonial Troubles When Wife Thinks Him Too Gay.

A dispatch from Long Beach, California, telling of the filing of a suit for divorce will be of interest to a number of people in this city who remember Charles A. Folger, who made this city his home for a number of years. Asserting that he has been squandering her fortune, Mrs. Folger, formerly of Brookline and Winchester, Mass., started the suit a day or so ago.

From her first husband, Dexter Almy Hall, a wealthy Massachusetts man, she inherited a fortune of $130,000. She had been married to Hall for 13 years, when he committed suicide by shooting himself in May, 1911. A year later she became the wife of Charles A. Folger, her chauffeur. They lived in Winchester for a while, then came to California.

Too Fond of Gay Life.
Recently Mrs. Folger went to Boston for the purpose of obtaining property which, valued at about $35,000, she asserted had been withheld from her by Judge J. Albert Brackett of the West Roxbury court. This claim was settled out of court last September.

After filing her divorce suit Mrs. Folger said: "I have willingly supported my husband since we were married. But he is too fond of gay living—drinking, gambling and the rest of it. I will not have him squander the property I just have had such a hard fight to recover."

"I was foolish when I let my husband come back to me once before, but he promised to do right. Now I am through. He took my automobile away a week ago, and was welcome to it. I sent his trunks after him to Los Angeles. He should make a good automobile salesman."

In the application which she filed Mrs. Folger asks to have the custody of her husband's daughter, Kathleen, 10 years old, to whom she is greatly attached. She says that her marriage to Folger was due partly to her love for the child.

on what Elklod stood for. He said in part that on this day the Elks gathered to recall to mind the memory of their departed members, not only in sorrow, but in love. He said that in every man there is a certain amount of emotion but that the emotion of the Elks is not only in the standing of a tear for those who are gone but in the work of looking after those remaining. In the putting of a coat on the shivering shoulders, the feeding of the hungry, and the lessening of the sorrows of others. This, he said, was the work and object of Elklod, which aimed at the assisting of those needing assistance, the protection of the home, the backbone of the nation, and the doing of good to others.

Dr. Dussault made a strong plea for preparedness in his closing remarks and said that the nation and Elklod should look to the protection of America. He said that a strong navy and army was costly but that it was insurance, and that its cost was not too great for the value of that which it was intended to insure. He said that there were three kinds of nations which were not in danger of war; the nation which was not in the way of another nation, commercially or otherwise; the nation which had nothing worth taking; and the nation which was able to hit hard and hit first, if necessary.

An impressive feature of the ceremonies was the "roll call" of the absent members. As the names were called by the secretary little eight-year old daughter of A. E. Horton, who was seated on the stage before the chair of the Exalted Ruler, placed a wreath on a mound which stood at the front of the stage.

100 FOND OF GAY LIVING FOR BRIDE

Former Portsmouth Resident Drops Into Matrimonial Troubles When Wife Thinks Him Too Gay.

A dispatch from Long Beach, California, telling of the filing of a suit for divorce will be of interest to a number of people in this city who remember Charles A. Folger, who made this city his home for a number of years. Asserting that he has been squandering her fortune, Mrs. Folger, formerly of Brookline and Winchester, Mass., started the suit a day or so ago.

From her first husband, Dexter Almy Hall, a wealthy Massachusetts man, she inherited a fortune of $130,000. She had been married to Hall for 13 years, when he committed suicide by shooting himself in May, 1911. A year later she became the wife of Charles A. Folger, her chauffeur. They lived in Winchester for a while, then came to California.

Too Fond of Gay Life.
Recently Mrs. Folger went to Boston for the purpose of obtaining property which, valued at about $35,000, she asserted had been withheld from her by Judge J. Albert Brackett of the West Roxbury court. This claim was settled out of court last September.

After filing her divorce suit Mrs. Folger said: "I have willingly supported my husband since we were married. But he is too fond of gay living—drinking, gambling and the rest of it. I will not have him squander the property I just have had such a hard fight to recover."

"I was foolish when I let my husband come back to me once before, but he promised to do right. Now I am through. He took my automobile away a week ago, and was welcome to it. I sent his trunks after him to Los Angeles. He should make a good automobile salesman."

In the application which she filed Mrs. Folger asks to have the custody of her husband's daughter, Kathleen, 10 years old, to whom she is greatly attached. She says that her marriage to Folger was due partly to her love for the child.

on what Elklod stood for. He said in part that on this day the Elks gathered to recall to mind the memory of their departed members, not only in sorrow, but in love. He said that in every man there is a certain amount of emotion but that the emotion of the Elks is not only in the standing of a tear for those who are gone but in the work of looking after those remaining. In the putting of a coat on the shivering shoulders, the feeding of the hungry, and the lessening of the sorrows of others. This, he said, was the work and object of Elklod, which aimed at the assisting of those needing assistance, the protection of the home, the backbone of the nation, and the doing of good to others.

Dr. Dussault made a strong plea for preparedness in his closing remarks and said that the nation and Elklod should look to the protection of America. He said that a strong navy and army was costly but that it was insurance, and that its cost was not too great for the value of that which it was intended to insure. He said that there were three kinds of nations which were not in danger of war; the nation which was not in the way of another nation, commercially or otherwise; the nation which had nothing worth taking; and the nation which was able to hit hard and hit first, if necessary.

An impressive feature of the ceremonies was the "roll call" of the absent members. As the names were called by the secretary little eight-year old daughter of A. E. Horton, who was seated on the stage before the chair of the Exalted Ruler, placed a wreath on a mound which stood at the front of the stage.

The Dead.
Since the founding of Portsmouth Lodge sixty-five of their number has crossed the Great Divide. Nine of these passed away during the past year and were: George H. Terry, George W. Stillson, Frank H. West, former mayor George D. Marey, Edward J. Gibbons, Ex-Mayor Edward E. McIntire, Donald A. Randall, Karl A. Fink and Richard Donovan.

The program: March, "Commemoration", Greenwald Elks Orchestra Selection, Rigetto-arr. by Tavan Orchestra Selection, "Sunset", Van der Water Acolian Quartette Ernest L. Cook, 1st Tenor; John W. Mitchell, 2nd Tenor; Freeman S. Caswell, 1st Bass; Ira A. Newell, 2d Bass.

Plan Expansion of Their Business.

The Morley Button Co., the Herald understands, is to erect a plant in France for the manufacture of buttons and a number of machines will be shipped there very shortly. It is understood that the plans call for the sending of Mr. Fred Oldfield of the local plant to France to install the branch. The foreign countries are making such stringent rules and foreign shipments are interfered with to such an extent that the change and expansion is necessary.

THE HERALD HEARS

That Billy Sunday's sermon on booze ought to pack the water wagons in and around Boston on the initial trip New Year.

That four hundred or more counterfeiters were arrested during the past year by secret service men.

That local business men say they will not handle turkeys for Christmas if the price is like that at Thanksgiving.

That George D. Prescott, for 53 years in continuous business as piano and organ manufacturer at Concord, will not retire and locate in Indianapolis.

That cold storage eggs after 70 hours must be marked by dealers in New York state.

That the state commissioner of motor vehicles at Concord has issued letters to all automobile owners regarding the issuing of next year's license plates.

That Mrs. Mary Davis, an actress 51 years of age, is still before the footlights.

That she regularly takes the part of "Old Lady 31" in Rachel Crothers' new play.

That the Republican ward and city council takes place this afternoon and evening.

That the return of the U. S. S. Washington would make more than one female heart happy.

That the Boston and Maine new time table became effective today.

That John C. Adams, a station agent for the Boston and Maine at Marblehead, retired on Saturday after years continuous service.

That he took just one vacation during that period which was 30 years ago.

That a readjustment of rates in the Royal Arcanum went into effect on Friday.

That 86 were killed and 41 injured in 16 states during the hunting season which ended Nov. 30.

That this compares with 59 dead and 162 wounded in 1911.

That the crowd of youthful sports who started for Newmarket on Thanksgiving evening will not forget the trip in a hurry.

That the trip was made via Dover and as the party were passing through Marlbury the machine went wrong.

That all efforts of the driver to start it failed and the boys were forced to bunk in the machine all night.

That with the approach of morning they got desperate and pushed the machine into Newmarket for repairs and also to telephone to their employers that they would not report for work at the usual time.

That the boys are unanimous that

Tommy can run a river, but the Overland was too much for him.

POLICE COURT

Robert McManus, Everett Setealof, and Herbert Pifer, a trio of Uncle Sam's recruits from across the river, tried to start something on Daniel street on Saturday night. They had partly stripped for a wallowing exhibition when three patrolmen called off the open air debate and waltzed them to the Chapel street inn. Shortly after being assigned to rooms on the ground floor, Pifer faded away in repose, but the other two made invective speeches, broke up part of the bench equipment and kicked off a lot of the new paint which had lately been applied to the guests' chambers. The trouble was on for several hours regardless of the efforts of Pifer to establish peace.

Today the speed was missing when the court heard the story of the entertainment from the police. McManus and Setealof had to dig up $18.01 each but escaped a jail sentence of 30 days, which was suspended. Pifer got away with a free ticket as a reward for his efforts with the flag of truce.

Peter Pratt, another Saturday night guest, was brought in from Congress street in a disturbing mood. His check today called for $5 and costs of $6.13.

WOMEN ONLY, MAY SEE "TWILIGHT PICTURES"

During the engagement here at the Olympia Theatre, Tuesday afternoon only at 2.30, women only will be admitted for the presentation of the "Twilight Sleep" pictures. These pictures were made under the direction of Dr. Kurt B. Schössing of Freiburg, Germany. The doctor was paid a fabulous sum of money to pose before the camera and to demonstrate in motion photography, his method of delivering children through the use of scopolamin, the drug used to produce "Twilight Sleep." A clear and definite understanding of the whole operation is gained through the pictures. Everything that takes place is recorded in the films, which takes in the most minute details of the operation. The pictures will excite the interest of every woman who sees them and will dispel fear from the minds of the many who have been influenced by false impressions as to just what the treatment consists of.

There are at present one hundred and fifty cases of measles among the school children.

A COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS TREE FOR PORTSMOUTH

Committee Working on Plans for Yuletide Celebration.

Owing to New Year's eve falling on Sunday there is not much prospect of the usual midnight celebration but plans are being made for a community Christmas tree on Christmas night. It is understood that the tree will be erected on Market Square and lighted by the Rockingham County Light & Power Company. It is also planned to have the school children ring as part of the program of exercises. A local business man has agreed to cut the tree and erect it free of expense. Others have promised to assist in the affair and those interested in preliminaries believe they already have a good start. A committee meeting has been called for tonight when further action will be taken.
